SURPRISE TRIP

For our tenth-year anniversary, I bought my wife a map of the world. I wrapped it up in a box and attached a card. On the card it said, “Throw this dart at this map, and wherever it lands is where I am taking you.” I’d been saving up money for close to two years now because we never had a honeymoon. I then put a dart n my wife’s hand. She was so excited and nervous. She said, “I hope it lands on Ireland.” She finally threw the dart, and I’m happy top announce that this October my wife and I will be spending two wonderful weeks beside the baseboard in the kitchen.

FATHER'S DAY WISDOM

At the end of their first date, a young man takes his favorite girl home. Emboldened by the night, he decides to try for that important first kiss.

With an air of confidence, he leans with his hand against the wall and, smiling, he says to her, "Darling, how 'bout a goodnight kiss?"

Horrified, she replies, "Are you mad? My parents will see us!"

"Oh, come on! Who's gonna see us at this hour?"

"No, please. Can you imagine if we get caught?"

"Oh, come on, there's nobody around, they're all sleeping!"

"No way. It's just too risky!"

"Oh please, please, I like you so much!!"

"No, no, and no. I like you too, but I just can't!"

"Oh yes you can. Please?"

"NO, no. I just can't."

"Pleeeeease?..."

Out of the blue, the porch light goes on, and the girl's sister shows up in her pajamas, hair disheveled. In a sleepy voice the sister says: "Dad says to go ahead and give him a kiss. Or I can do it. Or if need be, he'll come down himself and do it. But for crying out loud tell him to take his hand off the intercom button!"

JUROR DISCHARGE (from Disorder in the Court)

COURT: So I've entered a judgment of acquittal as to the charge against the defendant. It means your services are no longer required. So the good news is that you're discharged from further service in this case. The other good news is that you are to return Tuesday, January 12, at ten o'clock for another case.

JUROR #7: Come on, give us a break. This guy [defendant] walks out of here scot free and we've got to come back.

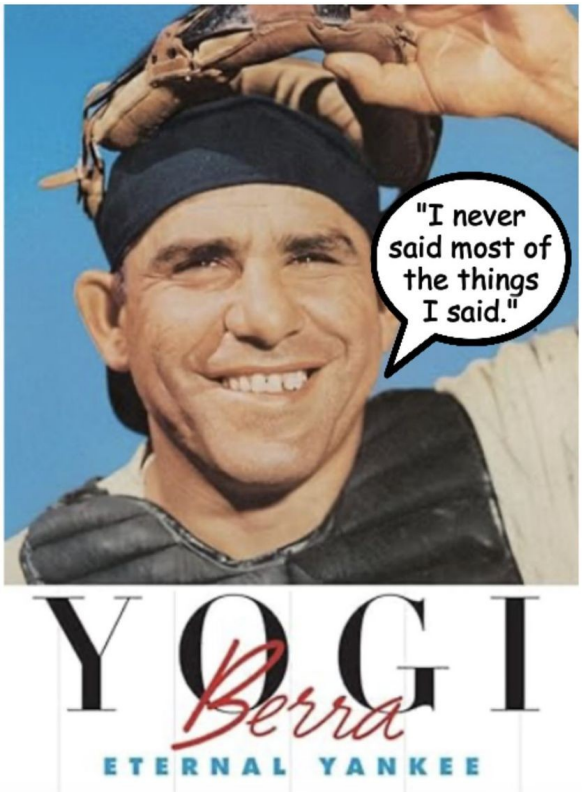
AND ON ANOTHER NOTE



GARDEN SNAKES CAN BE DANGEROUS---I NEVER KNEW THIS!

Snakes also known as Garter Snakes (Thamnophissirtalis) can be dangerous Yes, grass snakes, not rattlesnakes. Here's why.

A couple in Sweetwater, Texas, had a lot of potted plants. During a recent cold spell, the wife was bringing a lot of them indoors to protect them from a possible freeze.

It turned out that a little green garden grass snake was hidden in one of the plants. When it had warmed up, it slithered out and the wife saw it go under the sofa.

She let out a very loud scream.

The husband (who was taking a shower) ran out into the living room naked to see what the problem was. She told him there was a snake under the sofa.

He got down on the floor on his hands and knees to look for it. About that time the family dog came and cold-nosed him on the behind. He thought the snake had bitten him, so he screamed and fell over on the floor.

His wife thought he had had a heart attack, so she covered him up, told him to lie still and called an ambulance.

The attendants rushed in, would not listen to his protests, loaded him on the stretcher, and started carrying him out.

About that time, the snake came out from under the sofa and the Emergency Medical Technician saw it and dropped his end of the stretcher. That's when the man broke his leg and why he is still in the hospital.

The wife still had the problem of the snake in the house, so she called on a neighbor who volunteered to capture the snake. He armed himself with a rolled-up newspaper and began poking under the couch.. Soon he decided it was gone and told the woman, who sat down on the sofa in relief.

But while relaxing, her hand dangled in between the cushions, where she felt the snake wriggling around. She screamed and fainted, the snake rushed back under the sofa.

The neighbor man, seeing her lying there passed out, tried to use CPR to revive her.

The neighbor's wife, who had just returned from shopping at the grocery store, saw her husband's mouth on the woman's mouth and slammed her husband in the back of the head with a bag of canned goods, knocking him out and cutting his scalp to a point where it needed stitches.

The noise woke the woman from her dead faint and she saw her neighbor lying on the floor with his wife bending over him, so she assumed that the snake had bitten him. She went to the kitchen and got a small bottle of whiskey, and began pouring it down the man's throat.

By now, the police had arrived.

Breathe here...

They saw the unconscious man, smelled the whiskey, and assumed that a drunken fight had occurred. They were about to arrest them all, when the women tried to explain how it all happened over a little garden snake!

The police called an ambulance, which took away the neighbor and his sobbing wife.

Now, the little snake again crawled out from under the sofa and one of the policemen drew his gun and fired at it. He missed the snake and hit the leg of the end table. The table fell over, the lamp on it shattered and, as the bulb broke, it started a fire in the drapes.

The other policeman tried to beat out the flames, and fell through the window into the yard on top of the family dog who, startled, jumped out and raced into the street, where an oncoming car swerved to avoid it and smashed into the parked police car.

Meanwhile, neighbors saw the burning drapes and called in the fire department. The firemen had started raising the fire ladder when they were halfway down the street. The rising ladder tore out the overhead wires, put out the power, and disconnected the telephones in a ten-square city block area (but they did get the house fire out).

Time passed! Both men were discharged from the hospital, the house was repaired, the dog came home, the police acquired a new car and all was right with their world.

A while later they were watching TV and the weatherman announced a cold snap for that night. The wife asked her husband if he thought they should bring in their plants for the night.

And that's when he shot her.

HOME MECHANIC'S LAMENT

Every twenty- minute job is one broken bolt away from becoming a three-day ordeal.

LOOKS LEGIT

WHO SAYS TROOPERS DON'T HAVE A SENSE OF HUMOR?

In most of the United States, there is a policy of checking on any stalled vehicle on the highway when temperatures drop to single digits or below.

About 3 AM one very cold morning, Montana State Trooper Allan Nixon #658 responded to a call there was a car off the shoulder of the road outside Great Falls, Montana. He located the car, stuck in deep snow and with the engine still running. Pulling in behind the car with his emergency lights on, the trooper walked to the driver's door to find an older man passed out behind the wheel with a nearly empty vodka bottle on the seat beside him.

The driver came awake when the trooper tapped on the window. Seeing the rotating lights in his rearview mirror, and the state trooper standing next to his car, the man panicked. He jerked the gearshift into drive and hit the gas.

The car's speedometer was showing 20-30-40 and then 50 MPH, but it was still stuck in the snow, wheels spinning. Trooper Nixon, having a sense of humor, began running in place next to the speeding (but stationary) car.

The driver was totally freaked, thinking the trooper was actually keeping up with him. This goes on for about 30 seconds, then the trooper yelled, "PULL OVER!"

The man nodded, turned his wheel, and stopped the engine. Needless to say, the man from North Dakota was arrested and is probably still shaking his head over the state trooper in Montana who could run 50 miles per hour.

PARKING LOT IN FRONT OF THE LASER EYE SURGERY CLINIC

An elderly Florida lady did her shopping and, upon returning to her car, found four males in the act of leaving with her vehicle.

She dropped her shopping bags and drew her handgun, proceeding to scream at the top of her lungs, "I have a gun, and I know how to use it! Get out of the car - NOW!"

The four men didn't wait for a second threat. They got out and ran like mad.

The lady, somewhat shaken, then proceeded to load her shopping bags into the back of the car and got into the driver's seat. She was so shaken that she could not get her key into the ignition. She tried and tried, and then she realized why. It was for the same reason she had wondered why there was a football, a Frisbee, and two 12-packs of beer in the front seat.

A few minutes later, she found her own car parked four or five spaces farther down. She loaded her bags into her own car and drove to the police station to report her mistake.

The Sergeant to whom she told the story couldn't stop laughing. He pointed to the other end of the counter, where four pale men were reporting a carjacking by a mad, elderly woman described as white, less than five feet tall, glasses, curly white hair, and carrying a large handgun.

No charges were filed.

A Texas Highway Patrol Officer was conducting speeding enforcement on Hwy 77, just south of Kingsville, TX.

The officer was using a handheld radar device to check speeding vehicles approaching the town of Kingsville and was suddenly surprised when the radar gun began reading 300 miles per hour and climbing.

The officer attempted to reset the radar gun, but it would not reset and then... It suddenly went dead.

Immediately a deafening roar over the Mesquite treetops on Hwy 77 revealed that the radar had in fact locked on to a USMC F/A-18 Hornet which was engaged in a low-flying exercise near it's Naval Air home base location in Kingsville.

Back at the Texas Highway Patrol Headquarters in Corpus Christi, the Patrol Captain fired off a complaint to the US Naval Base Commander in Kingsville for shutting down his officer's equipment. The reply came back in true USMC style:

"Thank you for your letter....

You may be interested to know that the tactical computer in the Hornet had detected the presence of, and subsequently locked on to, your hostile radar equipment and automatically sent a jamming signal back to it, which is why it shut down.

Furthermore, an Air-to-Ground missile aboard the fully-armed aircraft had also automatically locked on to your equipment's location.

Fortunately, the Marine Pilot flying the Hornet recognized the situation for what it was, quickly responded to the missile system alert status and was able to override the automated defense system before the missile was launched to destroy the hostile radar position on the side of Hwy 77, south of Kingsville.

The pilot suggests your officer covers his mouth when cursing since the video systems on these jets are extremely high-tech.

“Yes, there is,” the doctor replies. “You could marry a tax accountant.”

“How will that help my illness?” the woman asks.

“Oh, it won’t help your illness,” says the doctor, “but it will make that six months seem like an eternity.” --Plato and a Platypus Walk into a Bar, Cathcart and Klein

Are you serious?!?!? So after leaving the drive-thru today I took my sandwich out of the bag and I see THIS!! Seriously? Oh not today, not today!!

I went back to the restaurant, went INSIDE (already fuming), asked to speak to the manager and then threw the sandwich on the counter. I asked him for an explanation. He looked confused, so I pointed at the writing on the sandwich and demanded that he tells me why someone felt the need to write it on my sandwich.

He answered, "Because you ordered a BLT with cheese??" To which I replied "Oh"

EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE, I GO OUTSIDE AND RUN THE VACUUM CLEANER

THAT'S THE EXPLANATION!

Two men are making breakfast. As one is buttering his toast, he says, "Did you ever notice that if you drop a piece of toast, it always lands butter side down?"

The second guy says, "No. I bet it just seems that way because it's so unpleasant to clean up the mess when it lands butter side down. I bet it lands butter side up just as often.

The first guy says, "Oh, yeah? Watch this." He drops the toast on the floor where it lands butter side up.

The second gut says. "See, I told you."

The first guy says, "Oh, I see what happened. I buttered the wrong side!"-- Plato and a Platypus Walk into a Bar, Cathcart and Klein

CROSSING TEXAS

SOUNDS REASONABLE

It was autumn, and the Indians on the reservation asked their new chief if it was going to be a cold winter. Raised in the ways of the modern world, the chief had never been taught the old secrets and had no way of knowing whether the winter would be cold or mild. To be on the safe side, he advised the tribe to collect wood and be prepared for a cold winter. A few days later, as a practical afterthought, he called the National Weather Service and asked whether they were forecasting a cold winter. The meteorologist replied that, indeed, he though the winter would be quite cold. The chief advised the tribe to stock even more wood.

A couple of weeks later, the chief checked again with the Weather Service. “Does it still look like a cold winter?” asked the chief.

“It sure does,” replied the meteorologist. “It looks like a very cold winter.” The chief advised the tribe to gather up every scrap of wood they could find.

A couple of weeks later, the chief called the Weather Service again and asked how the winter was looking at that point. The meteorologist said, “We’re now forecasting that it will be one of the coldest winters on record.”

“Really?” said the chief. “How can you be so sure?”

The meteorologist replied, “The Indians are collecting wood like crazy.”--Plato and a Platypus Walk into a Bar, Cathcart and Klein

CONSIDERATE BARBER

It was basic training, and I was seated in the barber chair bemoaning the impending loss of my hair when the barber asked, “Where are you from?” “St. Louis,” I grumbled.

“Hey, I’m from St. Louis too!” he said. He then asked conspiratorially, “Do you want to keep your sideburns?” I perked up. “Sure!”

With that, he revved up the razor, clipped off my sideburns, and gave them to me. As I left the barbershop with sideburns in hand, I heard him ask his next victim, “Where are you from?”

“Chicago.”

“Hey, I’m from Chicago too!”

THE FIRST KISS

At the end of their first date, a young man takes his favorite girl home. Emboldened by the night, he decides to try for that important first kiss.

With an air of confidence, he leans with his hand against the wall and, smiling, he says to her, "Darling, how 'bout a goodnight kiss?"

Horrified, she replies, "Are you mad? My parents will see us!"

"Oh come on! Who's gonna see us at this hour?"

"No, please. Can you imagine if we get caught?"

"Oh come on, there's nobody around, they're all sleeping!"

"No way. It's just too risky!"

"Oh please, please, I like you so much!!"

"No, no, and no. I like you too, but I just can't!"

"Oh yes you can. Please?"

"NO, no. I just can't."

"Pleeeeease?..."

Out of the blue, the porch light goes on, and the girl's sister shows up in her pajamas, hair disheveled. In a sleepy voice the sister says: "Dad says to go ahead and give him a kiss. Or I can do it. Or if need be, he'll come down himself and do it. But for crying out loud tell him to take his hand off the intercom button!"

NOT A JOKE—REAL STORY

I think Tommy Smothers is laughing somewhere...I just said to my husband, "Ahh! Tommy Smothers died." Then we started talking about something else. Moments later he says, "Whose mother died?" And I said, "huh?". He's getting a little irritated and says, "Who is Tommy whose mother died?" I said "NO, Tommy Smothers died!" And we both busted out laughing. It was just like one of their old silly routines. Rest in peace, Tommy Smothers and thanks for the laughs.

One day, shortly after joining the PGA tour in 1965, Lee Trevino, a professional golfer and married man, was at his home in Dallas, Texas mowing his front lawn as he always did.

A lady driving by in a big, shiny Cadillac stopped in front of his house, lowered the window and asked, “Excuse me, do you speak English?”

Lee responded, “Yes, Ma’am, I do.”

The lady then asked, “What do you charge to do yard work?”

Lee said, “Well, the lady in this house lets me sleep with her.”

The lady hurriedly put the car into gear and sped off.

GOSSIP'S KARMA

Mildred, the church gossip and self-appointed monitor of the church's morals, kept sticking her nose into other people's business. Several members did not approve of her extra-curricular activities, but feared her enough to maintain their silence.

She made a mistake, however, when she accursed Frank, a new member, of being an alcoholic after she saw his old pickup parked in front of the town's only bar one afternoon. She emphatically told Frank (and several others) that everyone seeing it there would know what he was doing.

Frank, a man of few words, stared at her for a moment and just turned and walked away. He didn't explain, defend, or deny. He said nothing. Later that evening, Frank quietly parked his pickup in front of Mildred's house . . . . and walked home . . . and left it there all night. You gotta love Frank.

An Inspirational speaker said: "The best days of my life were the days I spent with another man's wife".

Audience was in shock and silence.

He added: "And she is my mother".

A big round of applause and laughter followed.

One man who listened to the speech decided to crack this at home.

At dinner, he said to his wife: the best days of my life were the days I spent with another man's wife....

After a moment he tried to recall the second line.....

By the time he regained his senses, he was on hospital bed, recovering from burns of hot soup poured by his wife.

MOTHER'S LAMENT

I was singing "You Are My Sunshine" to my three year old, and he old me that he hates that song. I said that's a shame because I used to sing it to him when he was in my tummy before he was born, and he looked me dead in the eye and said, "I hated it then too."

I SET OUT A SUITCASE TO PACK FOR MY FLIGHT LATER TODAY AND SPOTTED MY 3 YEAR OLD CRAWLING INSIDE IT TO HIDE. I CASUALLY ZIPPED IT UP YELLING. "I'M OFF TO THE AIRPORT, EVERYBODY!" I CARRIED IT TO THE CAR AND CIRCLED THE BLOCK TWICE AND MY LUGGAGE HASN'T STOPPED LAUGHING.

My mom has a lead foot, so I was not surprised when a Highway Patrol Officer pulled her over as she was driving through Alabama.

Hoping to get off with a warning, Mom tried to appear shocked when he walked up to the car.

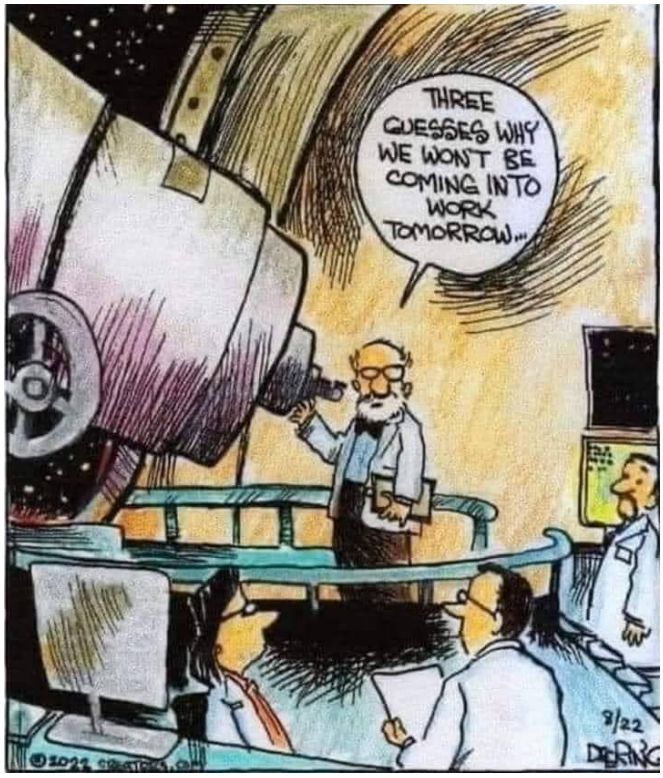
"What do they usually do, ma'am," he asked, "shoot the tires out?"



ABOUT HOW GOOD MY MEMORY IS

I was sure that I had put my car keys down in the fabric store. My two school age kids and I retraced our steps. Finally, I asked the clerk if any car keys had been turned in as lost. She brought a small box for me to view. My son exclaimed, “Mom, there’s your old car keys you lost when I was in 2nd grade.” I entered the Twilight Zone and found my current keys on the floor of my car.

At my age rolling out of bed in the morning in easy.
Getting up off the floor is a whole other story.

 EDIT

How Children perceive their grandparents.

1. I was in the bathroom, putting on my makeup, under the watchful eyes of my young granddaughter, as I'd done many times before. After I applied my lipstick and started to leave, the little one said, "But Grandma, you forgot to kiss the toilet paper good-bye!" I will probably never put lipstick on again without thinking about kissing the toilet paper good-bye....
2. My young grandson called the other day to wish me Happy Birthday. He asked me how old I was, and I told him, 68. My grandson was quiet for a moment, and then he asked, "Did you start at 1?"
3. After putting her grandchildren to bed, a grandmother changed into old slacks and a droopy blouse and proceeded to wash her hair. As she heard the children getting more and more rambunctious, her patience grew thin. Finally, she threw a towel around her head and stormed into their room, putting them back to bed with stern warnings. As she left the room, she heard the three-year-old say with a trembling voice, "Who was THAT?"

4. A grandmother was telling her little granddaughter what her own childhood was like. "We used to skate outside on a pond. I had a swing made from a tire; it hung from a tree in our front yard. We rode our pony. We picked wild raspberries in the woods." The little girl was wide-eyed, taking this all in. At last she said, "I sure wish I'd gotten to know you sooner!"
5. My grandson was visiting one day when he asked, "Grandma, do you know how you and God are alike?" I mentally polished my halo and I said, "No, how are we alike?'' "You're both old," he replied.
6. A little girl was diligently pounding away on her grandfather's word processor. She told him she was writing a story.
"What's it about?" he asked.
"I don't know," she replied. "I can't read."
7. I didn't know if my granddaughter had learned her colors yet, so I decided to test her. I would point out something and ask what color it was. She would tell me and was always correct. It was fun for me, so I continued. At last, she headed for the door, saying, "Grandma, I really think you should try to figure out some of these colors yourself!"
8. When my grandson Billy and I entered our vacation cabin, we kept the lights off until we were inside to keep from attracting pesky insects. Still, a few fireflies followed us in. Noticing them before I did, Billy whispered, "It's no use Grandpa. Now the mosquitoes are coming after us with flashlights."
9. When my grandson asked me how old I was, I teasingly replied, "I'm not sure." "Look in your underwear, Grandpa," he advised "Mine says I'm 4 to 6." (WOW! I really like this one -- it says I'm only '38'!)
10. A second grader came home from school and said to her grandmother, "Grandma, guess what? We learned how to make babies today." The grandmother, more than a little surprised, tried to keep her cool. "That's interesting." she said. "How do you make babies?" "It's simple," replied the girl. "You just change 'y' to 'i' and add 'es'."
11. Children's Logic: "Give me a sentence about a public servant," said a teacher. The small boy wrote: "The fireman came down the ladder pregnant." The teacher took the lad aside to correct him. "Don't you know what pregnant means?" she asked. "Sure," said the young boy confidently. 'It means carrying a child."
12. A grandfather was delivering his grandchildren to their home one day when a fire truck zoomed past. Sitting in the front seat of the fire truck was a Dalmatian dog. The children started discussing the dog's duties.
"They use him to keep crowds back," said one child.
"No," said another. "He's just for good luck."
A third child brought the argument to a close. “They use the dogs," she said firmly, "to find the fire hydrants."
13. A 6-year-old was asked where his grandma lived. "Oh," he said, "she lives at the airport, and whenever we want her, we just go get her. Then, when we're done having her visit, we take her back to the airport."

14. Grandpa is the smartest man on earth! He teaches me good things, but I don't get to see him enough to get as smart as him!
15. My Grandparents are funny, when they bend over, you hear gas leaks and they blame their dog.

As Chester left a pottery class, he desperately gave himself a personal TSA pat down. He was looking for his keys. They were not in his pockets. A quick search in the meeting room revealed nothing. Suddenly he realized that he must have left them in the car. Frantically, he headed for the parking lot. Chester's wife, Sally, had scolded him many times for leaving the keys in the ignition.

Chester's theory is that the ignition is the best place not to lose them. Sally's theory is that the car will be stolen. As Chester burst through the doors, he came to a terrifying conclusion: Sally's theory was right. The parking lot was empty. He immediately called the police. He gave them his location, confessing that he had left the keys in the car and that it had been stolen.

Then Chester made the most difficult call of all. "Honey," he stammered (He always calls her "honey" in times like these) "I left my keys in the car, and it has been stolen."

There was a period of silence. Chester thought the call had been dropped, but then he heard Sally's voice.

"Chester!" she barked, "I dropped you off!"

Now it was his time to be silent. Embarrassed, he said, "Well, come and get me."

"I will!" Sally retorted, "Just as soon as I convince this cop to take off the handcuffs!"

“Yes,” replies the priest.

The rabbi quietly asks, “Did you ever violate that prohibition?”

“Yes, once,” replies the priest.

The rabbi replies, “Beats a ham sandwich, doesn’t it?”

Tiger Woods and Stevie Wonder meet at the clubhouse bar and start to talk about golf. Stevie tells Tiger that he is also a golfer and a pretty good one at that.

“How can you play golf?” says Tiger. “You’re blind.”

Stevie explains, “I have my caddy walk toward the green, stand in the middle of the fairway, and call to me so that I know the direction of the green. After my first shot, I have him stand on the green and call to me again so I can get on the green.”

“But how do you putt?” asks Tiger.

“I have my caddy lie down by the hole and talk to me so I know where the hole is,” explains Stevie.

“We’ve got to play a round sometime,” says Tiger.

“Well, people don’t take me seriously,” says Stevie, “so I only play for money, $10,000 a hole minimum. Is that a problem?”

Tiger thinks about it and says. I can afford that. $10,000 a hole is fine with me. When do we play?”

Stevie replies, “I’m free any night you are.”

"Here's the secret," said his brother. "Irish girls like to talk about three things: food, family , and philosophy. If you ask a girl about what she likes to eat, it shows you're interested in her. If you ask about her family, it shows that your intentions are honorable. If you discuss philosophy, it shows you respect her intelligence.

"Gee, thanks," said Seamus. "Food, family philosophy. I can handle that."

That night as he met the young lady, Seamus blurted out, "Do you like cabbage?"

"Uh, no," said the puzzled girl.

MIXED MESSAGES

A school was shamed into changing its motto. It's motto was, "I hear, I see, I learn." There is nothing wrong with that concept. Unfortunately, the school used

Latin to state its "I hear, I see, I learn" motto: "audio, video, disco."

Another take on Latin mottos: "I learn through suffering" in Latin could be "Disco Inferno."

FAIR WARNING

Overheard my eleven-year-old daughter record her voicemail greeting: “Hi, you’ve reached my voicemail. When you hear the beep, hang up and send me a text.”

AMBIGUOUS WISHES:

- “I hope you have the day you deserve.”
- “I hope the rest of the day is as pleasant as you are.”

Frustrated by all the problems of aging, I suddenly realized that, since aging continues to add more problems, “it doesn't get any better than this.” So enjoy it.

JULIUS CAESAR PENCIL HOLDER

I spent my time making a home-cooked meal and place it in front of the kids, who immediately asked for something different and laughed. Then I laughed. Then we laughed. Then I spoke in a voice not of this world and everyone ate their damn dinner.

WHO CAN RESIST THOSE EYES?

THE REAL OUTDOORS MAN

During my physical examination, my doctor asked me about my physical activity level. I described a typical day, "Well, yesterday afternoon, I took a five hour walk for about 7 miles through some pretty rough terrain.

I waded along the edge of a lake, where it was boggy and I kept struggling to walk, but I kept going. I pushed my way through a major patch of brambles. I then slogged through a very sandy patch, my feet kept sinking into the soft sand and so I actually not only got sand in my shoes but also in my eyes.

I later just managed to avoid standing on a snake. I climbed several rocky hills. I took a few 'leaks' behind some big trees.

The mental stress of it all left me shattered. At the end of it all, I was so thirsty that I drank eight beers."

Inspired by the story, the doctor said, "You must be one hell of an outdoors man!"

"No," I replied, "I'm just a lousy golfer."

AWKWARD BRITISH PROBLEMS:

🇬🇧Staring at your phone in silent horror until the unknown number stops ringing.

🇬🇧Hearing a recording of your own voice and deciding it's perhaps best never to speak again.

🇬🇧The relief when someone doesn't answer their phone within three rings and you can hang up.

🇬🇧Filming an entire fireworks display on your phone, knowing full well you'll never, ever watch it again.

🇬🇧Mishearing somebody's name on the second time of asking, meaning you must now avoid them forever.

🇬🇧Leaving it too late to correct someone, meaning you must live with YOUR new name forever.

🇬🇧Running out of ways to say thanks when a succession of doors are held for you, having already deployed 'cheers', 'ta' and 'nice one'.

🇬🇧Changing from 'kind regards' to just 'regards', to indicate that you're rapidly reaching the end of your tether.

🇬🇧Realising you've got about fifty grand's worth of plastic bags under your kitchen sink.

🇬🇧"You'll have to excuse the mess" – Translation: I've spent seven hours tidying in preparation for your visit.

🇬🇧Indicating that you want the last roast potato by trying to force everyone else to take it.

🇬🇧"I'm off to bed" – Translation: "I'm off to stare at my phone in another part of the house".

🇬🇧The overwhelming sorrow of finding a cup of tea you forgot about.

🇬🇧Turning down a cup of tea for no reason and instantly knowing you've made a terrible, terrible mistake.

🇬🇧Suddenly remembering your tea and necking it like a massive, lukewarm shot.

🇬🇧Waiting for permission to leave after paying for something with the exact change.

🇬🇧Saying hello to a friend in the supermarket, then creeping around like a burglar to avoid seeing them again.

🇬🇧Watching with quiet sorrow as you receive a different haircut to the one you requested.

🇬🇧Being unable to pay for something with the exact change without saying "I think that's right".

🇬🇧Overtaking someone on foot and having to keep up the uncomfortably fast pace until safely over the horizon.

🇬🇧Being unable to turn and walk in the opposite direction without first taking out your phone and frowning at it.

🇬🇧Deeming it necessary to do a little jog over zebra crossings, while throwing in an apologetic mini-wave.

🇬🇧Punishing people who don’t say thank you by saying “you’re welcome” as quietly as possible.

🇬🇧Loudly tapping your fingers at the cashpoint, to assure the queue that you’ve asked for money and the wait is out of your hands.

🇬🇧Looking away so violently as someone nearby enters their PIN that you accidentally dislocate your neck.

🇬🇧Being sure to start touching your bag 15 minutes before your station, so the person in the aisle seat is fully prepared for your exit.

🇬🇧Repeatedly pressing the door button on the train before it’s illuminated, to assure your fellow commuters you have the situation in hand.

🇬🇧Having someone sit next to you on the train, meaning you’ll have to eat your crisps at home.

🇬🇧The huge sense of relief after your perfectly valid train ticket is accepted by the inspector.

🇬🇧The horror of someone you only half know saying: “Oh I’m getting that train too”.

🇬🇧“Sorry, is anyone sitting here?” – Translation: Unless this is a person who looks remarkably like a bag, I suggest you move it.

🇬🇧Worrying you’ve accidentally packed 3 kilos of cocaine and a dead goat as you stroll through “Nothing to declare”

🇬🇧Being unable to stand and leave without first saying “right”.

🇬🇧Not hearing someone for the third time, so just laughing and hoping for the best.

🇬🇧Saying “anywhere here’s fine” when the taxi’s directly outside your front door.

2 weeks ago, I told kids at school to write an essay titled 'If I Were a Millionaire.'
Everyone was writing, except a girl who leaned back with arms folded.
"What's the matter," I asked. "Why aren't you writing?"
"I'm waiting for my secretary," she replied.
Scored her 10/10.

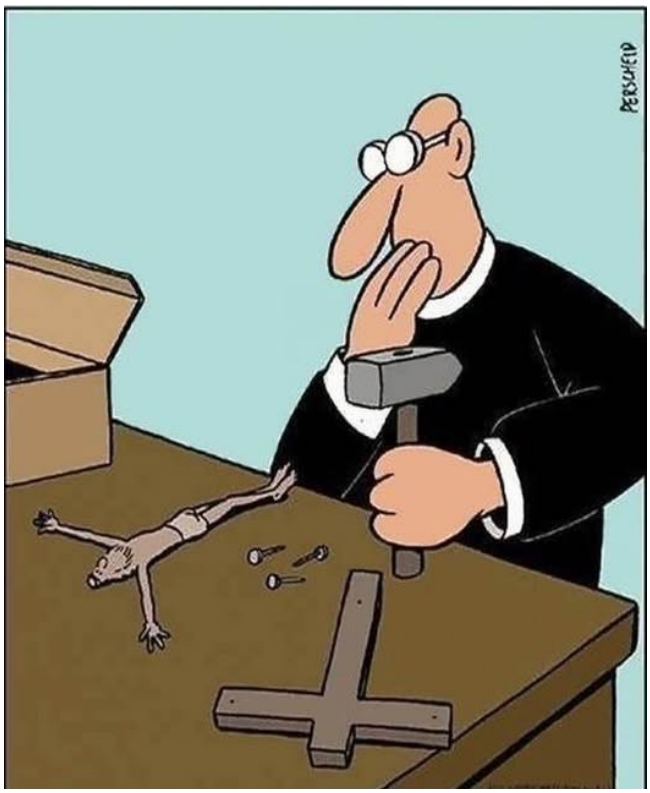
SUDDENLY, FATHER SCHOBER WAS NOT SURE WHETHER HE REALLY SHOULD HAVE BOUGHT THE NEW CRUCIFIX AT IKEA.



The people at the doctor’s office just tried to reassure me that my son wasn’t the worst behaved kid they’ve ever seen by telling me a story about the time a kid yanked a banner down from the ceiling.

What they didn’t realize was it was a story about my kid.

You know you've hit that age when you pop an ibuprofen and it just sits there in your stomach, looking around like, "Where on earth do I even start?" It's like the little pill is standing at a crossroads, overwhelmed, flipping through a catalog of all your aches, creaks, and mysterious pains like it's about to start a full renovation project. "The knee? The back? The shoulder that hurts for no reason? Oh boy." At this point I'm convinced it needs a GPS just to navigate its way to the right body part.

I THINK I'VE DONE ALL THE CHORES YOU ASKED ME TO DO.

An old man walks up to the counter of a pawn shop holding an old, weathered guitar

"I'd like your expert opinion on this guitar, how much do you think it's worth?" asks the old man.

The pawnbroker looks it up and down. "Well, I can tell right now that there's a little warping in the neck, the lacquer is faded and there are scratches and dents all over it. It's an old, well-played guitar but I don't think it's worth any more than twenty bucks."

The old man reaches his hand out and says, "Okay, if that's what you think it's worth.. you have a deal!"

"Great!" replies the pawnbroker, shaking his hand.

"Here's twenty bucks," says the old man. "I'll buy it right now!"

The broker stops and suddenly looks confused. "Wait.... buy?" he asks.

"Yes!" smiles the old man as he flips the guitar over, "This one has a sticker price of $150, but now that I have your honest opinion, I think twenty bucks is a great deal!"

BONDING WITH SON

My son was born while I was serving abroad, so he was three before we met. When I got home, I decided it was time for a little father-son bonding time. I bought him a toy razor and invited him to "shave" with me. In the bathroom, I took up my razor and started shaving. I looked around to see how my son was doing. His foot was up on the side of the bathtub, and he was running the razor up and down his leg. So much for male bonding.

REMINDS ME OF A SONG I ONCE HEARD

This morning my kid said that his ear hurt and I said on the inside or outside? So he walked out the front door, came back in and said both. Moments like this get me to wondering whether I'm saving too much for college.

During a combat medical training class, the topic was blast injuries. At one point, our very intimidating instructor pointed at me and said, "There's been a jeep explosion. What would you do if you came upon an injured man with a steering wheel embedded in his chest?" Nervous and unsure, I blurted out, “Drive him to the hospital?” For some reason, the rest of the room found this hilarious.

THE MYSTERY CONTINUES

I made my bed and found a half-eaten stick of butter in it. When I asked my child if she put anything in mommy’s bed, she said, “I did not put butter in it.”

Our booking office had three phones. One day during lunch, I was responsible for answering all of them. It was a constant repeat of “May I help you?” or “Will you hold?” I guess I got confused because I surprised one man on the other end of the line when I answered his call with, “May I hold you?”

An elderly woman was walking her dog when a young man grabbed her purse and ran away. I asked her if she was OK, and she smiled and said that its really no big deal because she carries her old purse to put her dog's poop in until she gets home to dispose of it.

My three-year-old daughter said that she wished we had a pet. I reminded her that we have a dog. Wow, the genuine surprise on her face as it dawned on her that our dog is a pet and not just some other guy who lives here.

AIRLINE ANNOUNCEMENTS

- “Please make sure you take all your belonging with you. Anything left behind will be distributed evenly among the flight attendants. Please don’t leave children or spouses.”
- After a heavy landing the pilot announced, “As you may already know, we have hit our destination.”
- "Folks we will be arriving early today because we found a shortcut."
- “For those of you wondering about the weather at our destination, Honolulu is reporting sunny skies and temperatures of 86 degrees. Unfortunately, our destination is Nome Alaska which is reporting 27 degrees below zero and blowing snow.”
- “Please refrain from smoking until you reach a designated smoking area, which, for California, is Las Vegas.”
- As the plane is taxiing to the gate the pilot announces, “We are currently recruiting people to clean the aircraft. If you wish to volunteer then please stand before we have come to a stop.”
- “We are pleased to have some of the best flight attendants in the industry. Unfortunately, none of them are on this flight.”
- "Welcome to San Francisco, we hope you had a good flight and thank you for flying Southwest - if you didn't, my name is Bob and this is United"
- "America West (Operated by Mesa): "In the event of an emergency landing, lights on the floor will illuminate to guide you to the exit. Or you could just follow me because there's no way any of you are beating me off this plane.""

Last weekend, the drive up to London was improved by listening to a Sherlock Holmes audiobook on the car’s CD player. I was amused by my inability to follow the plot as closely as I would have liked, and put this down to middle age. It was only when I arrived at mu destination that I realized that the CD player was on “shuffle” mode.

The older I get, the more I regret all the people I've lost over the years. Perhaps being a trail guide wasn't the best occupational choice.

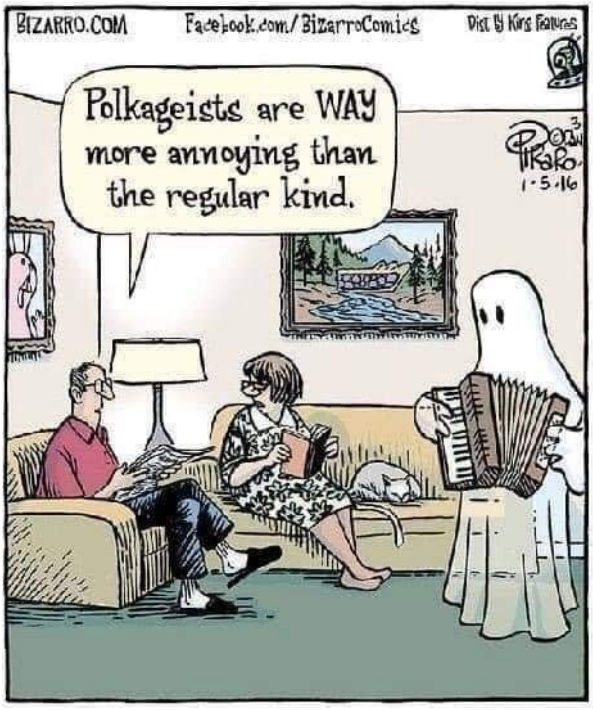
DOOR DASH

I just delivered an order of 2 kid's meals. The order said to leave it at the door. I took a picture and rang the bell. As I was walking away a woman opened the door and looked down and said, "I didn't order anything."

I gave her the name, and she said, "Dammit!" picked up the food and, as she was turning around yelled, "Who called gramma and said they were hungry. I just fed y'all."



MILITARY REGULATIONS

Anyone wanting to take pictures on our base's airfield needs a letter from public affairs, which happens to be me. One day, while out snapping photos, I was stopped by the military police, who asked for my letter from public affairs. "But I am public affairs," I said. "Without a letter from public affairs, we'll have to take your camera." I did the only thing I could do: I pulled a notepad and pen from my bag and wrote a letter giving myself permission to take photos. The MPs read the letter, saluted, and left.

I once got sent out of class at school for being too sarcastic. The teacher yelled at me, "What would your parents say if I called them"

REASONABLE DOUBT?

A defendant was on trial for murder. There was strong evidence indicating his guilt, but there was no corpse. In his closing statement, the defense attorney resorted to a trick. “Ladies and gentlemen of the jury,” he said, “I have a surprise for you all—within one minute, the person presumed dead will walk into this courtroom.”

He looked toward the courtroom door. The jurors, stunned, all looked eagerly. A minute passed. Nothing happened. Finally, the lawyer said, “Actually, I made up the business about the dead man walking in. But you all looked at the door with anticipation. I therefor put it to you that there is reasonable doubt in this case as to whether anyone was killed, and I must insist that you return a verdict of ‘not guilty.’”

The jury retired to deliberate. A few minutes later, they returned and pronounced a verdict of “guilty.”

“But how could you do that?” bellowed the lawyer. “You must have had some doubt. I saw all of you stare at the door.

The jury foreman replied, “Oh, we looked, but your client didn’t.”-- Plato and a Platypus Walk into a Bar, Cathcart and Klein
